MODERN WEAPONS OF WAR.

Are they so "Deadly."

The last legacy Sir William Ramsay leaves to the thought of the age before his retirement from the Chair of General Chemistry at London University is the suggestion that prussic acid bombs are a perfectly possible development in the weapons of war. Sir William's point is that such weapons would be so appalling in their effects that, if only international law would allow them to be used, war would become impossible. This idea is stale. One may question whether it is true. Many military thinkers, regarding moent military lessons, are coming to doubl whether modern weapons really possess their much-advertised "deadliness." "In all that is said and written about the horrible effectiveness of modern guns and rifles, it seems to be assumed that you are going to bamboorle the enemy into standing in front of them," said one of them. "In other words, our ordnance in. ventors base their estimates of the deadliness of their weapon on the assumption that the other side is going to advance against them in some such formation as that employed by Duke William at the Battle of Hestings. Of course, no enemy would be anything like so silly. In to-day the protegonists try to shoot esci other at a distance of 2,000 yards, with the result that, as in the last Boer war, the ratio of snewy killed to bullets expended is about I to 200,000. It was i ancient and medieval times when people employed really deadly weapons such as clabs, spears, bows and arrows, and even flinthouts that war was justly distance to the individual. Think of the terring slaughter indicted within half an hour by the Logist bownen at Admenart, Postders, and Orocy. Then think of the Italian battleship armed with the last word in destructive artiflery bom

No Englishman has been in the Arctic 1450, having, tradition says, been exterregions where the discovery is said to have minsted by the Eskimo." been made, so recently as Mr Cosmo D. THIORIES REJECTED. Melvill, F.R.G.S., who has communicated some experiences bearing upon Mr Stefannsen's report to The Standard. In the autumn of 1910, when Mr Melvill and Mr John Hornby were hunting caribou between the Great Bear Luke and the Coppermine River, in North Canada, they fell in with a hunting party of Europeanised Eskimo, and camped with them for two days. They also met Mr Stefannsen, who had followed up directions they had placed in a cache on the Coppermine River, and exchanged notes upon their discoveries. Mr Stefannsen is one of the toughest of explorers," said Mr Melvill, "He can practically equal the endurance of the native. Two winters ago caribou, and, ideed, all game was exceedingly scarce, and Dr Andersen are out making biological, as well as ethnological researches, and had collected a number of natural, history specimens. In this scarcity they actually boiled these specimens in seal-oil and ats thom. When I last saw him in May, 1910. he had not reached any definite opinion with regard to the Morth Canadian Eskimo."

ESETHO ON MAINLAND. . Mr Melvill states that there is a large group of Eskimo inhabiting, in scattered bands, the Canadian mainland. They are to be found between the Great Fish River, on the east, and the Dolphin and Union Straits, on the northwest, and even in Victoria Land and other northern islands They have no communication with the Western Eskimo, nor with their Southern neighbours, the Slave and Dog-rib Indians, These Indians, indeed, are their hereditary foes-they call them "the lousy people -as Indians practically always are to Eskimo, whether there has been contact between the two races or not. permine River Eskimo had ever seen, said Mr Melvill, "and certainly in the present generation there has been no communication between them and Europeans. Nevertheless, they have quite remarkably European features, and according to Stefannsen the Eskimo of Victoria Land are really a very fair people. Further north, too, he had heard that there were other similar groups. In habits and speech tools and weapons, and even in folk-lore, they are ordinary Eskimo.

Whence, then, does the European trait able to elucidate this very interesting come to them? Mr Melvill found that the ethnological puzzle. lively Victorian Eskimo whom he photo 498 graphed with a bow in his hand, did not believe that there were such people a white men." He and his wife supposed that stories of people living to the south were fairy tales. All these Eskimo whom he cam had the coarse, straight hair of the mongoloid, and fair skins, in spite of sunburn and weather stain. So fair were they matives of Herschol Island, Mackenzie River, first saw some of the same type in Victoria Land, they cried ent : " Why

Neither theory can hold," says Mr Melvill, "unless the whole group of these new people have some Cancasian characteristics. I believe that if only a few families are found to have marked European features it can be attributed to recent causes in their history. I know how European many of the Bear Lake Slave Indians look and this look can be explained by the fact that numerous British expeditions have wintered in their country, and many of the old people even boast that their fathers were white men."

It has, however, been conclusively proved that none of Sir John Franklin's men survived and lived hela Eskimo; so that, George's Buildings, Victoria, Hongkong, on indeed, all game was exceedingly scarce, unless this conclusion is overthrown, these SATURDAY, the 30th day of March, 1912, but his party could not move on because races cannot descend from this expedition. one member was ill. Admiral McClure wintered in the Investi- seen at our Office. gator, in 1850-1, at Princess Royal Island, North-West Victoria Land. Admiral Collinson's Enterprise wintered in Walker Bay, Western Victoria Land, in 1851-2, and in the following year at Cambridge Bay, South Victoria Land. Previously Sir James Clarke Ross had spent three years on the isthmus of Boothis. Al these ships had dealings with the Eskimo and at the British Museum there are collections made in these expeditions.

HYEEID DEVELOPHERT However, there is no record that these expeditions noted a European type existing among the tribes. But besides the traces which these expeditions might casily have left behind them, Sir John Franklin's Erebus and Terror had been abandoned in 1848 between Victoria Land and King William Land, so that it is calculated that some 400 European seamen must have lived in the neighbourhood of these Eskimos for "We were the first white men the Cop- some years. Mr Melvill is, therefore, inclined to draw the conclusion that the fair Fakimos of Mr Stelemosen's discovery ats a recent hybrid development.

DEATH IN COAL-MINES.

The English papers to hand by the mail are already full of articles dealing with nearly every aspect of the coal-strike, the condition of the mining industry, the dangers of a miner scalling, etc. Among the more remarkable articles is one contributed to the Daily Mail by Joseph Kenting, which he heads "Douth in Colours": -No man, goes more willingly to his death

You would think that the eternal darkness of the pit would make men miserable and morose. Instead, the men whose lives are spent in perpetual gloom are bright, lighthearted and eminently content with their heaven only on Sundays, for during six days it is dark when they go to their work and dark when they return—that is, if they return, for from the moment they step ipto the eago that is to take them down into the dark mine they put themselves within reach of death in a million forms.

" PEATH HATH SO MANY DOORS." What particular dark hole Death may apring from, of course, no one knows. The rope may break, let the cage fall a thousand feet down, and smash sixteen human beings into unrecognisable pulp Or, while still merely at the beginning of the day's work, something might go wrong with the centre-guides-these things happen rather often; then the upcoming cage catches the downgoing one, and the men and boys are cut up into small sections. As a man walks slowly along the tunnel to his work, a slight fidgetiness on the part of nature loosens the stones in the roof." The stone that drops may only just touch the man's cap. But the touch is enough. His contrades carry him home on a rough stretcher of wood, with some tar--cinvis over him. The poor mother and her children weep, and their own lives are mule joyless with the memory of it. The dangers in the "face"-that is, at the actual work of cutting the coal-are so many that it would be quite impossible to mention all. But the notorious danger is the Red

All the scientists have been at work trying to discover and thwart this source of wholesale slaughter. They know that two things, and two things alone, are responsible : a large accumulation of gas and small artificial light. As the work of getting conliterif produces gas, that evil is 420 inevitable : and as artificial light is necessary to do the work, why, that evil is also inevitable. Taken separately, there things do no harm. But the momentalicy come together it is the signal that a few hundred simple souls me sent for by God, "HOW THE DED DEATH COMES, Red Death file the black r ade. It goes raging, blazing round the long galleries, sceking whom it may dovour. It comes out of the darkness with a road Its fury shakes the carth. The roof trong bles, breaks, and down comes the mountain in myriads of pieces. The dust mingles with the great times; the volume of fire becomes too vast for the narrow tunnel. Thousage will a crumble, burst out, and give the blase more room. The ground tocks fundor the men's feet; they tolter and fall and the appalling fire torrent rushes over

Every man and boy in the pit eries on with terror. They know that the rolling thunder they bear is the rost of douth Even the horses, there may be firee four hundreit of them Quiderstand wh the roads and sides are trambling. The men, boys and horses rush out. The on MAY of eactpo is where the light of da comes down the shaft . That is lar away From white to they are land they acres may be THE BACE FOR LIFE.

. The men, boys, and horses rush out before it. It will overtake them. But they rush on, with the poor hope that they can outrun Death. The long, narrow tunnel becomes a jumble of human beings and animals. The menshout, the boys scream, the horses neigh and snort with terror aild Emmple on the weaker things. The dust rises in black clouds. By and by that dust will help tomake the flames more flores and strong Then it will gain on the living mass rushing before it, and men, boys, and horses wil lie down, quiet, and the fire-dragen wil devour them all.

Death he has bahind him a more terrible power than himself. For behind the flame comes a perfect whirlaind of furnace-hot dust-the scorching blast that fullows in the track of every explosion. A man may escape the fire. In his fright to harm him. But the moment he rises be feels about his face something that is at totture heat. It blisters and tears the had suddenly thrust his head in a cauldronof molten lead. The agony makes him fall writhing upon the ground a ain. That second fall to the ground may prolong his life for a moment. It is the

DEADLIEST ENEMY OF ALL Along comes the worst enemy of all—the poisonous "after-damp." It steals, invisible, through the roadways, at the tail of the blast. It can neither be seen nor heard nor felt. It is mysterious. But it is terrible. It brings into the sir its inviside dilution of death.

Far shead of him in the darkness the mun sees a faint red tinge along the roof. That is the blast. Its strength is demonincal. It sweeps before it horses, trams, men, and boys, and crushes them all into one great heap of wreckage. It rushes out with the driving fore; of a hundred express

Quite silently, without, any of the up-hundred about ninety-five will die peace-A few moments before they lie down the men see the little boys fall upon their knees and mumble that they are sleepy. Fathers take their sons up in their arms to. carry them home to their mothers. But fathers and sons lie down together in the dust. The mysterious invisible after-damp has crept into their lungs and they are their arms. Only God can wake them !

Can be burg le as amount and market a the ancient cathedral city aver permits involution be pover the withdrawal a few hours after publication, of the ourrent imus, of The Contention, a monthly magazine issued by Ring's School. King a is a cathedral sobool, and one of the boys who had attended service at the cathedral expressed himself rather treely will be ready for antry about lat April. and foreibly as to the nature of the service. The letter so outraged the exthodox connected with the cathedral that they had the paper withdrawn and suppressed. The following is the letter, as it appears in one of the copies which the cathedral authorities did not succeed in conficating .--

To the Editors of the Cantuarian. Dear Sirs - L have just returned from divine service at the Cathedral Church of Christ, Canterbury. Never in my life do I remember having participated in so monstrous a performance. It is more folly to say that any schoolboy can be or is influenced for good by such a long drawn. out, dismal, unsympathetic ritual as that performed on this Sunday morning, and, huar, on every Sunday at the above place of worship.

I am told it is an old tradition that the King's School attend this service. By all means maintain old traditious as long as they are beneficial or even harmless, but such a tradition as this can have no effect but what is absolutely injurious. A ordinary healthy English boy-or man for that matter who regularly attends this service will do one of two things, either he will get into the habit of merely regarding these two hours of his existence as an extra period of sleep, and all that he hears will go in at one car and out at the other, or, if he is less phiegmatic in character, he will grow to regard the whole affair as a farceand a waste of time. Lither in the first place he will come to regard religion with hat stolid indifference which is ruining the English Church to-day, or he will become a sceptic or agnostic.

Think for a moment of the service as heard it. The Psalms were rushed through allegro presto, presumably because they were the sole part of the musical service which lent itself to congregational singing at all. The anthem was long and moderately sung; it can have had no meaning at all to most of those means hair whose offspring is only drowsiness. The hymns two in number, were well known, and could have been sung by the whole congregation; instead, they were taken a an anthem, with tenor and treble soles and an organ interlude between each verse Both hynns occupied double the time they do at a parish church. The ser mon I will not criticise - except that it was too long. It is not the gift of all men to be sound and interesting as well, and the preacher was certainly sound

Through all this and through a length Bunnings, San Floor, of prayers and Litany whose whole tone was one of reverout hypocrisy, the school was compelled to sit because it was an old tradition.

Until you inspire the potential ruling ATO. 57, PRAYA GRANDE, MACAI classes of this land, that is to say, the public schools, with a feeling of strong, true religion, and not a feeling of indifference and enoui, or criticism and opposition, you will never teach the lower classes to follow you. With apologies.—Scruator.

EDINEURGH. February 5 NARROW VICTORY OF SCOTLAND OVER WALES.

In Association football Scotland defeated Wales at Edinburgh by the only goal scored after a game in which the play was very far from International form. Ecotland attacked for the greater part, but it was only three minutes from the end, when all sesmed over and-a draw certain, that Quinn obliged by one of those goals for have been cruel luck for the Scottish a combination. Quinn especially had a rough time from J. !. T. Jones, a big strapping centre half.

The home goal had a couple of narrow escapes, and Brownlis gave Scottish sympathisers a big fright by a faulty save. Wynn drove in a hard shot, which kept their record clean, it was only by a Brownice stopped all right; but he failed to grip the ball, and it rebounded into play, Luckily Walker, of Swindon, was 27 points to nil. Institution were hopeful lying handy, and he nipped it away before Wynn had time to get in. 'Close to the interval, Brownles retrieved himself in great style. Vizard, the clever young Bolton Wanderer, had been very scrive on the left touch line, and he was directly responsible for getting M'Nair and Walker into difficulties. As it was, Brownlie was coming out to meet the winger; Vizard sent the ball to Wynn, who was lying in a nics position; Wynn tapped the ball quietly in the direction of the open goal; but in a manner, which seemed to border on the miraculous Brownlie recovered and Shanghai, Bangoon, Samarang, Sourabaya, clutched the ball asiety. The Welah goal of credit on its Branches and correspond was stoutly attacked, and it was only the dour and at times coarse, tactics of their defenders that kept it intact. Quint again had a rough passage, and the referee had repeatedly to penalise Lewellyn Davis and others. but Mercer in no way suffered from comparison with his better known collesgues. Thomson was outstanding at centre half: his defence was useful in the first half, and his forcingwork invaluable in the second when Scotland was pressing hard for a 1 score. Forward, Scotland was best served by Sinclair, Quinn, and Walker. Sinclair's play in the second half was all that could be desired, and some of his crosses ought to have been taken advantage of. M'He neny's play was a mixture of bad and good, with bad things in a majority. All Quinn's shortcomings were forgotten when he scored the great goal at the finish. He had a hard time of it from the Weish defenders, and the goal no doubt, therewhich he is so justly famous. It would fore gave him the greater satisfaction. As

The meeting of Edinburgh University and Edinburgh Academicals aroused great interest : the latter team having overcome Hawick and Glasgow Academicals (twice) were thought to be the likeliest to dispose of the students. The game, however, was a poor one, and though the University small margin. Watsonians, of course, had it all their own way with West of Scotland: they put on the biggest score of the eesson, of a win at the expense of Stewartonians, but J. H. Wanderers fell back on their old form, and H.S. found them an easy prey, Bawick Barbel, -Ks Yu were fortunate in winning from Jed Porest in the closing stages they were in great danger of losing their slight lead,

AFFAIRS IN SWATOW.

Judging from the telegrams sent by responsible Chinese in Swatow the condition of affairs there is anything but satisfactory. The consequence is that all business and every kind of intercommunication is at a standshill. The message continues: Were not for the presence of foreign gunbos s, and the landing of marines and blue sokets by the Foreign Powers, it is certain that the city would have been der troyed. COLONIAL COUNTRIONS. The revised regulations governing the granting of commissions in the Regular Army to officers of the military forces of the colonies is regarded as making an important stage in the consolidation of the Imperial delence mheme on which the advisors of the War Office have been engaged for some considerable number of years. In has been found, however, that previous attempts at this raising from the rables process have indicated the need for close care, for some of the commissions granted to Colonials in South Africe have turned one far from satisfactory. So the thirty or so candidates selected from overseas every year will have to show something more than merely educational equipment. The ability to show espeit co corps and qualities calculated to maintain the good feeling in the regiment that is essential to smooth working, are as important in the outilt of a young officer as virility, intelligence, or a thorough knowledge of military bext books If these qualities are obtained from the available Colonist aspiracis the army as a whole stands to gain very heavily from the infusion of this overseas coal-owners is hardening. There is a belief that the strike will collapse in -a fortnight, but a miners' leader, on being strike would and at the earliest in three weeks and at the latest in six weeks. All depended on the action of the district committees which the Governmissis proposed to establish.

Coal rose 5/- a ton in London yesterday when it was estimated that 37,000 were added to the number of the House to proceed with the Bill. unemployed.

SUGGESTED REMEDIES

Throughout the country the demand for prompt Government action is becoming more insistent, though it argued from opposing standpoints. section of Conservatives believe that half of the strikers would return work if they dared and urge, the despatch of troops and the proclamation of martial law in the coalfields. section of the Radicals insist upon the find it very difficult to discharge." inclusion of the 5/- and the 2/- minima. in the Miners' Minimum Wage Bill.

"TIMES" DEPRECATES Force.

The Times dwells on the determina. tion of the strikers and the terrible consequences of using force, pointing out that the leaders who have returned to London from visits to the districts are more irreconcileable than ever, and that it is the duty of the Government not to spare any efforts to secure a settlement by onnsent. It understands that it is the policy of the Government -to pass the Bill and ascertain its effect before taking further measures.

HARROWING DISTRESS.

The stories of distress are becoming more poignant. A third of the popula. tion at Ilkeston is existing on philanthropic soup. This is almost typical of the sufferings in industrial centres such as Middlesbrough, where 25,000 ironworkers are idle.

Children are described as fainting from hunger in the streets and others have been in bed for weeks because they have no clothes.

A sad feature is the number of better class people among the hunger queues. South Wales is described as threatening to become divided into two new classes, givers and receivers of relief

GENEROUS OWNERS.

The West Yorkshire coal-owners have contributed 1,000 guinens to relieve the distress in Yorkshire.

A CONTRAST.

In contrast to the poverty is the fact that one colliery in Yorkshire estimates that a quarter of a million sterling has been made by selling the reserve stock at present prices.

PROSPECTS BLACKER.

The prospect last night was blacker than ever. The Conference between owners and men, of which so much was expected, was not held. Mr Asquith and his colleagues conferred with the owners and two of the Miners' Executive for four hours, but failed to bring them

The Government had delayed the Bill from Friday til to-day in the hope that it might be possible, when the ground of discussion interviewed, said he believed that the hed been so narrowed, that some agreement might be come to by the parties.

> almost in a whisper, Mr Asquith said that the Government had laboured for an agreement hard and permistently and it was to him a profound disappoint ment that he had to confees to the House that all their labours had been nnevailing. Mr Asquith concluded:-" We have exhausted all our powers of persussion, argument and negotiation. We press this Bill upon the House as affording the best possible provisions in the great emergency wherewith we are confronted, and we chim that we have done our best in the public interest with perfect fairness and impartiality."

MR BOYAR LAW'S SYMPATHY

Mr Bonar Law said he deeply sympathised with the Premier, and trusted that the Bill would end the crisis and that the men would return to work. If not, the Government were entitled to remind the miners that they were also British citizens and the whole forces of the country should be-employ ed to protect those desiring to obey

LABOUR OPPOSITION.

An amendment to the Bill providing for the insertion of the stand minima was rejected by 326 votes to 83. The Labour members have decided to oppose the third resding of the Bill

HOUSE OF LORDS.

In the House of Lords, Lord Crewe stated that the House would take the Coal Bill to-morrow, and he would move a motion enabling more than one stage to be taken on the same day.

LABOUR'S POINT OF VIEW

Mr Ramsay Macdonald said that the failure of the negotiations was entirely due to the owners who had not budged one inch. If they wished to go to the public clean-handed it must be before the bill passed. They must meet the men and agree upon something substantial, enabling the leaders to tell the men that the bill was acceptable otherwise the largest share of the responsibility for the continued deadlock was theirs.

Mr McKenna announced that ashitherto no settlement had been come to, the Government would take all the stages in the Coal Bill in the House of Commons to-day.
